My aim in life.

Aim means goal or destination. It is the dream of a person that he/she tries to bring it into reality. In simple language, it is the desire that a person pursue to achieve in the future or what a person wants to become in the future. It is the preparation of oneself in the early days of a person as student. We can say it is a journey that begins with a small steps as student and ends when finally reaches to the particular goal or destination. As a saying holds true for all time that, "A journey of thousand miles begins with a single step. But the journey of is not at all easy. It is full of obstacles and difficulties. But if once a person having faith in oneself and tries to overcome those problems with sheer determination and with a definite purpose in his or her mind then surely he/she will be able to accomplish this journey of aim.

My aim in life is to become a good Catholic priest. A priest is one who is qualified to perform religious duties and ceremonies in the Roman Catholic church. He is chosen by the people to guide them and serve them. People who have gone astray from God and does not believe in God. They are the people who really need to be guided by someone or else they may ruin over themselves. I want to guide these kind of people and do at least something for God. And this I can materialize only when I become a priest. For a priest has the best chance to guide those people as he is chosen for the very purpose. This is the reason why I want to become a priest.

I am ignorant of the obstruction and distraction that are on my way to priesthood. But if I am able to overcome those obstruction and distraction and if God permits I will surely become a priest and fulfil my desire of helping the people. But it is noteworthy that any and everybody cannot become a priest. Anyone who becomes a priest are the chosen people of God. So if I am one of them, I will surely become. From my part I will do my best and the rest, I will leave on to the hands of God. For it is said that, "Do your best and the rest will follow." I thank God for my aim in a very sincere manner.
